

Scottish Refugee Research Network

Scottish Refugee Research Network aims to support Scottish based research into refugee and asylum issues in Scotland by connecting people researching within this area.

Scottish Refugee Council is hosting the Scottish Refugee Research Network with support from UNHCR.

The Scottish Refugee Research Network aims to:

- Promote networking and information sharing amongst academics, NGOs and a broad range of others working within the refugee sector in Scotland.
- Create an up-to-date directory of researchers and research being carried out into refugee and asylum issues, which will be available via www.scottishrefugeecouncil.org.uk.

As researchers, you can expect to benefit from joining the Network through opportunities to attend research launches, notifications of forthcoming publications and other events of interest. Most importantly, you can liaise with other researchers in order to advance the reach of research into refugee issues within Scotland.
